About Responsive Inspections

A responsive inspection, performed by an RHRA inspector, is a physical inspection of a licensed retirement home. A responsive inspection is conducted when RHRA receives information that the licensee may have failed to meet the standards of the Retirement Homes Act, 2010 or its regulations (the “RHA”). An inspection being conducted does not imply that an allegation is substantiated or that a contravention of the RHA has occurred. A licensee is required to report to RHRA if they suspect harm or risk of harm to a resident. During a responsive inspection, an RHRA inspector may observe the operations of the home, interview relevant individuals, review records and other documentation, and determine whether the licensee’s management and staff have followed mandatory policies and practices designed to protect the welfare of residents.

Following a responsive inspection, the RHRA inspector prepares a draft inspection report which is sent to the licensee. The draft report may include instances where the licensee has failed to meet the standards of the RHA. If included, the licensee can respond to these instances and is strongly encouraged to inform RHRA of its plans to meet the standards of the RHA.

Following the draft report, the RHRA inspector prepares this final inspection report, incorporating any response from the licensee with their plans to meet the standards of the RHA. The most recent final inspection report must be posted in the home in a visible and easily accessible location. All final inspection reports from the previous two years must also be made available in an easily accessible location in the home. The licensee must provide a copy of this report to the home’s Residents’ Council, if one exists.

In addition to inspection reports, RHRA may provide information to a licensee to encourage improvements of their current practices.

If there is a serious incident or the licensee repeatedly does not meet the required standards, RHRA may take further action.

Concern(s)

During a responsive inspection, an inspector will focus primarily on the concern(s) which prompted the inspection and may take various actions to determine whether the licensee is compliant with the RHA in relation to the concern(s). Any findings of non-compliance identified in relation to these concerns are listed below.

Concern #1: CON-6540-Abuse

RHRA Inspector Findings

An inspection by the RHRA was conducted in response to a mandatory report made by the home. The inspection found no evidence that the Licensee had implemented behaviour management strategies and techniques to address the behaviour of a resident who displayed responsive behaviours over numerous occasions.

Further, a resident who displayed responsive behaviours did not have any of his needs as they related to behaviour management addressed in his plan of care.

Finally, the resident's plan of care had not been updated to reflect the change in the resident's needs, neither had it been updated within the six-month prescribed timeline.

A review of the Licensee's training records indicated that some staff had not been trained in behaviour management, a mandatory training requirement under the RHA, 2010.

The resident had responsive behaviours and displayed these behaviours on numerous occasions over several months. The inspection found that the Licensee did not take appropriate steps to address the behaviours and mitigate the risk to others in the home. The lack of behaviour management strategies and techniques, the plan of care being outdated and not reflective of his current needs and failing to train all care staff in behaviour management, placed residents at risk and culminated in an incident in which a resident suffered injuries.

The Licensee's failure to address the behaviours in multiple ways and over several months resulted in harm to a resident. Act s. 67(1)

Outcome

The Licensee must take corrective action to achieve compliance.

Additional Findings

During a responsive inspection, an inspector may observe areas of non-compliance that are not related to the concern(s) which prompted the inspection. In these cases, an inspector may cite the home for these contraventions at the time of this inspection. In addition, an inspector may follow-up on findings of non-compliance from previous inspections. Where the licensee is unable to demonstrate they have come into compliance or maintained compliance, an inspector may cite the home for these repeat contraventions at the time of this inspection.
